Questions to consider surrounding the text

Main focus: Romans 2:17-24

1. What is the charge that Paul is making against his fellow Jews – against his former self – in 2:18-24?
2. Paul quotes Isaiah 52:5 in Romans 2:24, drawing on the very clear center of the prophet's critique of Israel. Israel had not just made a few mistakes but had failed completely in the task God set it. How would Israel's failure affect God's reputation in the world?
3. The point of Paul's accusations in Romans 2:21-23 is not that he thinks all Jews commit adultery or steal or rob temples. The point is that if even some Jews were doing these things (and, of course, Paul points out that Gentiles do also), this completely undercuts Israel's boast that, as a nation, it was still the light of the world, able to reveal God's law and truth to the rest of humankind. Israel was failing to fulfill its part in the covenant God made with them, through Abraham, to bring blessing to all nations. What is the solution to this problem? Answering that question is where Paul's argument is headed in the rest of the letter.
