A Birth of Christ Narrative???

Revelation 12 retells the whole of human history as a drama involving three characters: a woman, a child and a dragon.

The woman appears first (12:1-2). She could be Mary since she gives birth to Jesus. But she's more likely to be the people of God as a whole, from whose seed the Messiah came. Isaiah portrayed Israel as a woman in childbirth, waiting to bring forth the Messiah (Isaiah 26:17, 66:6) and the woman in Revelation spans the whole history of redemption. Revelation 12:17 refers to Christians as "the rest of her offspring" – the product of the mission of the church.

The child is Jesus. Verse 5 says the child "will rule all the nations with an iron scepter." It's a quote from Psalm 2:9 where God's Messiah receives an iron scepter to rule the nations.

The dragon is clearly identified as Satan in Revelation 12:9: "The great dragon was hurled down- the ancient snake called the devil, or Satan, who leads the whole world astray." But the Old Testament also often describes great empires and evil forces as a dragon or some other monstrous creature (Psalm 74:12-14, 89:10; Isaiah 27:1, 30:7; Ezekiel 29:3, 32:2-3; Habakkuk 3:8-15). The dragon has "seven heads and ten horns and seven crowns on his heads" (Revelation 12:3). Ten and seven are symbols of completeness, so the dragon's ten horns and seven crowns represent his false claim to complete sovereignty (Daniel 7:7,24). In Revelation 12:4 we're told that "its tail swept a third of the stars out of the sky and flung them to earth." It's a reference to Daniel 8:10, which describes Antiochus Epiphanes, who would persecute God's people in the third century BC. John's use of this allusion suggests that behind the hostility of Antiochus on earth was the hostility of Satan in heaven. This is typical of the way John reapplies an Old Testament critique of idolatrous power to his own day.

The drama of chapter 12 unfolds in three acts.

1. Act One: The Coming of Jesus
2. Act Two: The Defeat of Satan
3. Act Three: The Warfare of the Church
