Sproul on false teaching

"In one of my graduate school courses, "The History of Heresy," we examined heresies from the first century to the mid-twentieth century. All the heresies with which the church has had to fight have been difficult and destructive, yet in every age the appearance of heresy has forced the church to sharpen her definition and confession of the truth. When Arius denied the deity of Christ, the church convened at Nicaea to declare the full deity of our Lord in what became the Nicene Creed. When Eutychus and Nestorius proclaimed their heresies in the fifth century, the church assembled at Chalcedon and gave further definition and precision to our faith in the person of Jesus. The doctrine of imputation is under attack today as powerfully as it was during the sixteenth century. As much as I decry that, I am glad it has come to center stage. More books have been written about justification in the last fifteen years than in the last three hundred years."

Memory Verse

"But false prophets also arose among the people, just as there will be false teachers among you, who will secretly bring in destructive heresies, even denying the Master who bought them, bringing upon themselves swift destruction. 2 And many will follow their sensuality, and because of them the way of truth will be blasphemed."
